

The Coming of the Light
by Susan Mokolke

Refrain (after each verse):

Love burns bright and binds all life together
Holy light, we live to feed the flame

The coming of the light
The waning of the night
A grateful welcome to the sun
We celebrate the light

The coming of the light
Stars are sparkling bright
The shining moon's a silver bloom
We celebrate the light

The coming of the light
Daybreak kindles night
The splendor of the dawning sun
We celebrate the light

The coming of the light
The mountain's snowcapped height
A spirit home of ancient stone
We celebrate the light

The coming of the light
Blue oceans foaming white
A dancing stream in sunlight's gleam
We celebrate the light

The coming of the light
A rainbow neon bright
Wind that sighs through changing skies
We celebrate the light

The coming of the light
Birds in soaring flight
Greet the dawn in joyful song
We celebrate the light

The coming of the light
Trees and sky unite
Standing beings, green growing things
We celebrate the light

The coming of the light
The wolf that runs the night
The wonder of Earth's living web
We celebrate the light

The coming of the light
The soul's endless delight
For love we live, love yet to give
We celebrate the light
